

Photos of Malheur River Trail — South Section
Malheur National Forest

June 26, 2011

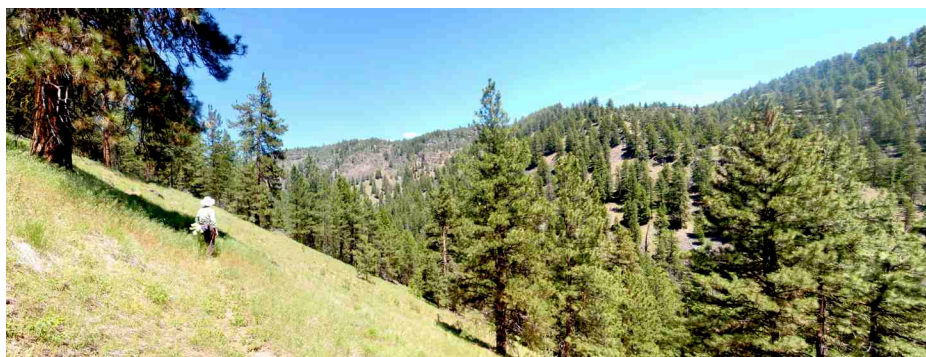

The trailhead is on a forested knoll, at the east edge of Hog Flat.

From the trailhead, there is a sweeping view to the south, down the Malheur River canyon.

The well-built trail switchbacks for 1.5 miles down to the river below.

On the way down, there are a few scenic views north, up the river canyon.

The trail meets the river in a mature forest of ponderosa pine and Douglas fir.

The trail follows the west bank of the river upstream, through broad flat river terraces....

...which alternate with narrow steep river banks.

A good lunch destination is a shady riverside terrace with old growth ponderosa pines.