

Photos of Monument Rock Wilderness Hike
Malheur National Forest

June 29, 2011

The trailhead is on a switchback in the road, about 0.8 miles below the fire lookout.

Looking back down the trail, to the west, with sweeping views of Glacier Mountain.

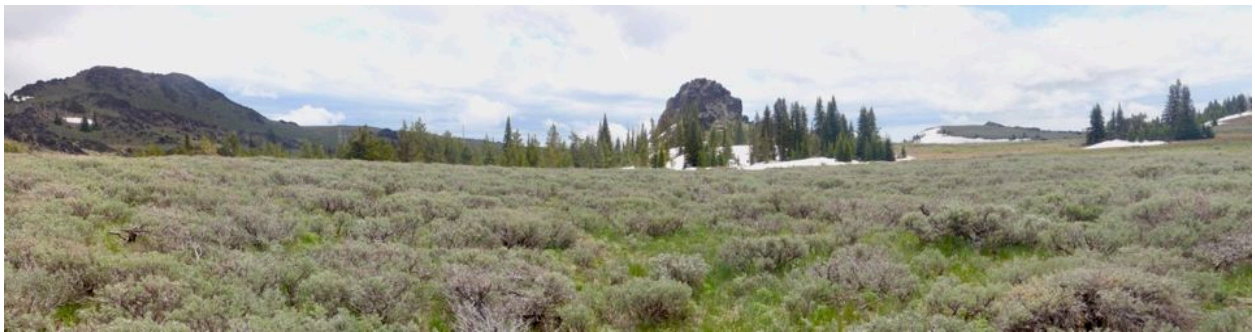

Approaching the ridge crest, with the first views of Monument Rock in far distance.

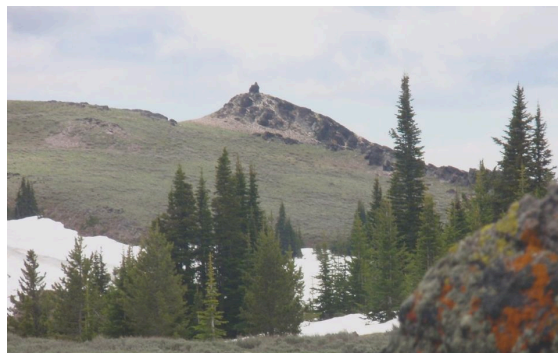

At ridge crest, looking northwest to Table Rock and fire lookout on right.

Looking southeast along ridge crest, with Monument Rock in distance at far right.

Stacked rock cairn is visible on skyline atop Monument Rock.

Hiking along the ridge crest is easy, either along old roads or cross-country in most any direction.
